THE CONVENTION'S OVER-WHELMING VOTE.

FULL PROCEEDINGS OF THE DAY

All of the State House Officers Renominated.

EEN. 60EDON CORPTS THE NOMINATION

The Close of a Great Political Campaign.

The convention which met at the capitol yesterday was the largest democratic state convention that ever assembled in Georgia, and it accomplished its important task between the hour of noon and supper time. Business went through with a rush at eight o'clock the comvention adjourned side die. General John B. Gordon was nominated for governor by a practically unanimous vote. When the vote was announced it stood: Gordon 322, and Ba-

One of the most not ceable features of the convention was the new faces. It seemed that a nearly new convention occupied the hall. Very few familiar faces were or hand, and to a frequenter of conventions it seemed that the people had picked out a new lot of representatives. Here and there was a familiar face, but they were few

SCENES AT THE CAPITOL. Below is a full account of the proceedings. The espitol woke up from its summer lethargy, vesterday morning, and fairly boiled over with life. As early as nine o'clock, crowds began to gather in the building. Some were delegates to the convention, some were office-seekers looking after their political fences and some were spectators bent upon witnessing the interesting spectacle of the making of a governor. At ten o'clock the hall of the house of representatives was com-fortably filled with delegates, while the gallerles were crowded with ladies and gentlemen, who were determined to be in time to secure seats. An hour later, there was standing room neither on the floor of the hall, nor in the galleries. People were packed together like sardines in a tin box. When one moved a hundred others followed suit. Just ten minutes before the hands of the o'clock over the main entrance to the hall pointed to twelve, Hon. W. A. Harris, of the county of Worth, lifted up his voice and requested the attention of the immense assembly. "I move," he cried, "that the Hon. Mr. Allred, of the county of Pickens, be elected doorkeeper of this hall, and that he be instructed to admit none but delegates."

The motion was unamimously adopted, and the Hen. M. Alked took up his position near the main door. He failed, however, to produce a none comparable at a failed, however, to produce a none comparable at a failed.

At twelve o'clock, J. H. Polhill, of the county of Jefferson, chairman of the state democratic executive committee, made his way to the speaker's stand, took his position behind the marble topped desk, and, seizing the gavel, rapped the delegates to order.

When silence was obtained, Rev. Henry McDonald, pastor of the Second Baptist church, of Atlanta, offered an elequent prayer. He asked the blessing of God upon the convention and prayed that its deliberations might be characterized by wisdom, prudence and judgment. He referred to the historic past of the state and petitioned that its future might be as glorious. He begged God's blessing upon the sister states, upon the peoblessing upon the sister states, upon the peo-ple of other lands who are struggling for free-dem, and closed by invoking a special bene-diction upon the candidates whom the con-Vention should nominate.

Hon. J. H. Polbill sgain obtained the alteration of the delegates and made the following. lowing ennouncement:
You are assembled under the call of the executive committee to nominate candidates for the office of governor, secretary of state, treasurer, attorney-general and comptroller-general. The first thing in order is the selection of your temporary officers.

He has graced the bar of Georgia, adorned our literature, and beautified and adorned the walks of private life. I nominate as temporary chalman, Judge John T. Clark, of the county of Randolph. [Applanse]

The nomination was duly sconded, and Judge Clark was unanimously elected.

Messrs, Nichols, of Pierce, Ridgely, of Burke, and Thompson, of Hall, were appointed a committee to conduct Judge Clark to the chair He was received with great applause.

JUDGE CLARK's ADDERSS.

After a brief introduction by Hon. J. H. Polbill, Judge Clark asid:

Gentlemen of the Convention: In assuming the position of honor and responsibility, to which your partiality has called me, permit me to say that I am proud to look upon this assembly today. I behold in you the representatives of a part; which in addition tolks spiendid history of earlier public services, did, by long and "banful struggle, redeem this beauteous Georgia land from military oppression and radical misrule, and re-establish our affairs on the firm basis of constitutional liberty. I behold in you the fit representatives of a large constituent element of the national democratic parity, who, for so many years, successfully defended and maintained the blessed constitution of our fathers, and who stand today a serried host around its marred columns and injured temple animated with the holy spirit of American freedom, and solemnly resolved to hand down to unknown generations what yet remains of its priceless blessings. I trust that you realize the importance of preserving and perpetuating the unity and efficiency of that party, in all its relations, state and federal, and that you will not willingly do anything which can diminish hapers of the fulfilment of its high mission.

But of the fulfilment of the high mission chings are not the fulfilment of the high mission chings are not the fulfilment of the high mission chings are not the fulfilment of the high mi

The convention reassembled promptly as three o'clrck.

Hon, W. A. Harris announced that there was no permanent fund for defraying the expenses of the convention, and requested the chairman to appoint a committee of three to take up a collection for that purpose. Messrs.

Hon, Alex. King, of the county of Fulton, moved that the convention proceed to elect a permanent chairman. The motion was carried.

Dr. R. D. Spalding, of the county of Fulton, obtained the floor. He said:

Mr. Chairman: I rise to nominate a gentleman who is in every way worthy to preside over this magnificent assembly of democrats—Mr. Benjamin H. Bigham, of the county of Troup.

Hop. W. A. Harris seconded the nomination.

He said:

I have the happy honor of knowing Mr. Bigham from my early days. I used to go to school with him to Judge Beman, whom I well recollect, and never shall forget. [Laughter.] I fise to second the nomination of the gentleman from Fulton. I know that Mr. Bigham will make as good, as honerable a chalrman as any convention ever had. [Applause.]

Mr. Bigham was unanimously elected permanent chairman.
A committee, consisting of Messrs. Spalding. of Fulton, Harris, of Worth, and Smith, of Crawford, was appointed to conduct him to the chair.

MR. RIGHAM'S ADDRESS. On taking the chair, Mr. Bigham was greeted with applause. He thus addressed the convention:

vention:

Gentlemen of the Convention: The accession of the democrats to power in Georgia was signalized by the adoption of prudent measures, and by the introduction of economy into every department of the state government. The distinguished gentlemen from Muscogee, now here as a delegate, deserves honor for the broad-minded common-sense that entered into the conduct of public affairs during the time he occupied the gubernatorial chair, especially in the management of the state flances.

during the time he occupied the gubernatorial chair, especially in the management of the state finances.

Other worthy men have since been governors, well known to us, and endowed with exalted virtues, which you see I do not pause even to enumerate, but, coming at once to the present, I congratulate you that we now have a democratic administration in Georgia notable for the absence of what is termed self-seeking, and for the continued presence in all its methods of an evident desire to subserve the public weal-strong, business-like and successful. The people have recently declared in unmistakable terms whom they intend shall be the successor of Governor McDaniel. I am glad the choice has been made of one so pre-eminent as that, no matter what may have been our previous differences of opinion, we can, as joyal democrats, support him with honor to curselves and without detriment to any one of the other gentlemen who have been mentioned in connection with the office of governor. Choice has been made at this time of John B. Gordon, not because Georgia loves her other sons less, but she loves John B. Gordon more. And he deserves it. In the most important war recorded in history, without the aid of West Point training, so valuable to the military man, or the assistance of personal pationage, he worked up from a subaltern position shrough the toils of the march, the vigils of the camp, the struggles of the battlefield and the unferings of the nospital to where he stood by the side of Jackson, next to the immortal Lee himself. After peace came, without parliamentary training, he stood in the front rank as our representative in the United States senate, and worked successfully to redeem South Carolina from ignominious carpet baggism. Verily, this man, all unconscious to himself, walks amongst us as Sau walked amongst the people at Milpeh, higher than his fellows from the shoulders up-us as Saul walked amongst the people at Mipen, "higher than his fellows from the shoulders upward."

In closing what I have to say I broaden, for a moment, our field of observation and corganulate you that we have a majority in the house of representatives of the United States. That Mr. Cleveland is a democrat, wise and firm, and that is president in fact as well as in name, sustained by the support of his party and many other good men, north, south, east and west throughout his broad land, so that we may reasonably expect that he or some other true democrat may be expected to be his own successor. I also congratulate you that probabilities exist of a majority in the near future in the United States senate. Then the great party to which we belong being for the first time in many years in possession of the agencies and bodies of magistracy and of all the offices that go to make up the general government will be enabled to form a public policy based on good principles and execute it. Then, and not till then, can the democracy be charged with responsibility. And then the whole American republic, as Georgia has already done, under the benligant sway of good laws administered by good men will enter upon a new era of prosperity and haspiness.

Standing in this noble presence, I respectfully men will enter upon a newera of prosperity and happiness.

Standing in this noble presence, I respectfully urge upon you that we each one see to it that all we say and everything we do, shall contribute to this great result. This is the duty of every loyal democrat true to the best interest of his party and of his country.

For the honors bestowed on me I return my sincere thanks. I will try to perform the duties of this office, and when I fail I ask for your prompt intervention and correction to the end that our business shall be dispatched with due decorum.

The speaker was repeatedly cheered, and The speaker was repeatedly cheered, and when he concluded a perfect storm of applause greeted him.

mously elected permanent secretaries.

The chairman announced the convention duly organized and ready to proceed with its duly organized and ready to proceed with its business.

The following resolution, offered by Hon. W. A. Harris, was unanimously adopted:

That this convention, in behalf of the democratic party of Georgia, hereby returns its thanks to the Hon. Henry b. McDaniel for the ability, zeal and fidelity with which he has discharged the duties of the office of governor. His administration of the affairs of the state has been conducted with an eye single to the public interest and with conspicuous success.

Hon. J. L. Sweat, of the county of Clinch, announced that it was the duty of the convention to elect a new state executive committee. The committee was composed of two members from each congressional district and four from the state at large. He moyed that the convention take a recess of twenty minutes to allow the delegates from the different districts to confer on the matter. The motion was seconded and carried, and the convention adjourned for twenty minutes.

THE COMMITTEE ON CREDENTIALS REPORTS. When the convention was again called to order, the committee on credentials was ready to report. Hon. Patrick Walsh, the chairman, stated that by a vote of fourteen to five the committee recommended that the delegation from Eartow county, headed by R. H. Jones, (the Gordon delegates), be seated. He also stated that the Hon. J. W. Maddox would submit a minority report. That gentleman said that the facts in the case were these:

The chairman of the democratic executive committee of Bartow county called a meeting to select delegates to several conventions, among them being the gubernatorial nominating convention.

among them being the gubernasses ting convention.

At this point, Hon. C. B. Houdsn of Schley, made the point of order that no notice of the intention of the minority to make report had been given while the committee was in session.

Hon. J. W. Maddox insisted that the chairman of the committee had been notified that the minority would submit a report. The minority had a right to be heard, and they intended that their rights should not be trampled upon. This statement provoked applause.

The chairman wanted to know if the gentleman meant what he said as a report.

He replied that he did, as Mr. Walsh had suggested to him to submit a verbal report, but, as Colonel J. W. Preston had a written report, he would be glad to have it read.

Colonel Preston read the report, which recommended that the Bacon delegates be

ARGUMENT IN THE CASE.

Mr. Maddox moved the adoption of the minority report as a substitute for that of the majority. He then went into the history of the case, which is familiar to the readers of THE CONSTITUTION. Continuing, he said that he didn't care which delegation the convention voted for, but there was a principle invoived and it must be settled. If the convention followed democratic usage, it could not seat the Gordon delegates. The meeting that elected Gordon delegates was composed of bolters from the regular meeting called by the democratic executive committee. The regular meeting was organized by the chairman of that committee. When the meeting was declared organized the power of the chairman of the executive committee ceased. ARGUMENT IN THE CASE, man of the executive committee ceased.

After the meeting was organized, the business was proceeded with and the bolters did not leave until their reso. Jutions were voted down. The point he wished to make was that the bolters had no authority to elect delegates. The Gordon delegates had come to the convention without authority. The delegates recommended by the minority report had come to the convention with authority and were legally entitled to seats.

to seats.

Hon. John S. Candler advocated the majority report. He wished to say emphatically that he also felt that there was a principle involved in the case. That principle was found in the resolutions voted down by the meeting that elected Bacon delegates. That meeting would not be bound by resolutions pledging support to the rominees of the convention. When the resolutions were voted down, the meeting, in effect, said that it would not support John B. Gordon. THE ARGUMENT IS CONTINUED,

THE ARGUMENT IS CONTINUED, yet the delegates elected by that meeting had come to the convention and asked to be seated. The independents in Bartow county had run over the democrats and then had come to the convention seeking admission.
Continuing, he said:

Continuing, he said:

There were three questions involved in this contest: Was that convention properly called? Was it properly organized, and were they proceeding legally and democratically? There is no controversy as to the first two, but a wide divergence as to the third. A resolution was introduced pledging every voter who took part in that meeting to vote for the nominee of this convention. By a small majority this resolution was voted down; whereupon 457 democrats who would support your nominee left that meeting and have sent men here who would. Will you seat them? Will you say to them: "We respect your democracy; we sympathize with you in your struggle against demagogueism and independentism and give you our hands to help you?" I believe you will.

Hon. D. B. Hamilton said that he had noth

Hon. D. B. Hamilton said that he had nothing to add to what the gentleman who had just taken his seat had raid. The committee had carefully examined into the case, and a large majority favored seating the Gordon delgates. He thought they ought to be seated.

Hon. Patrick Walsh addressed the convention in support of the minority report. He spoke earnestly and temperately, covering the same ground covered by Hon. J. W. Maddox.

Mr. Clark Howell, of Fulton, then gained the floor and spoke in favor of the adoption of the majority report, addressing his remarks more particularly to the issue as between independentism and democracy, and the part played by Dr. Felton in the contest in Bartow county. He said that there was no democrat in the state whose counsel was more spraciated by the party than Hon. Pat Walsh, but that gentleman in his carnestness for his friend, whom he had gallantly supported, seemed to fail to appreciate the fact that the contest in the Bartow case was a square issue between party organization on the one hand and disruption and independentism on the other. Above all counties in the state it was best that as the issue was made it should come from Bartow. It was the nest of independentism in the state, and after its own people had overthrown the influence which had threatened the party organization of the county for so many years, it was proper that the true democracy of the county be sustain-threatened the party organization of the county for so many years, it was proper that the true democracy of the county be sustained by the convention." [Applause.] Mr. Howell reviewed the proceedings of the Bartow county convention, and showed Dr. Felton's part in the meeting. The vote was close in the organization of the meeting, in which a large independent vote participated. It was the balance of power in the county. Dr. Felton was there after he had publicly denied allegiance to the party organization. Was it not presumable that the other independents followed him, whom they had always followed, or did they belong to the party as represented by Colonel Capers, Colonel Jones and Gus Fite, and others who had fought the party's battles in that county, for years, against the very power which now openly defied the party and yet presumed to dictate to its conventions? To test the democracy of the mesting a resolution was offered pledging party fealty and promising to abide by party nominations. This was voted down, and the true democracy of the country pledged to be governed by This was voted down, and the true democracy of the county, pledged to be governed by party organization, adjourned to another room and, by a larger vote than that of the other meeting, elected Gordon delegates, which now asked the convention for admittance. Which will you seat? That delegation sent by the true, rock-bottom democracy of the county or that representing the independent power which had been overthrown in Georgia by party organization, which means the life and iberty of the democracy of the state? [Applause.]

Colonel D. P. Hill, of the county of Paulding, spoke in favor of seating the Gordon delegates. The meeting was clearly in the hands of independents or those who refused to abide the party nominations, as had been shown by their refusal to signify a willingness to do so. It was not until they had refused that the true democrats withdrew, when they saw that the meeting was in the hands of the independents, who, by aligning themselves with the minority of the democrats who favored Baoon could control the convention.

Captain George A. Mercer, of the county of Chatham, said that the question came before the committee on credentials as a purely legal question. He felt it due to the party that he should take the view of it that an unprejudiced lawyer would. ing, spoke in favor of seating the Gordon del collawyer would.

Captain Mercer had the secretary to read to the convention the statement of the Baoon delegates from Bartow, which was listened to with attention, and consumed about fifteen with attention, and consumed about fifteen minutes.

Colonel H. D. Capers, of the county of Bartow rose to a question of privilege, and stated that the paper of the Bacon delegates was clearly an exparte statement. The whole case should be presented.

Captain Mercer—"I was on the committee on credentials, and presumed that the whole case had been presented." He thought he knew the facts or the case, and from what he knew he believed the Bacon delegates to be entitled to seats. They were nominated by the duly authorized convention of the county. It was not necessary that it pass the resolution pledging fealty to party nominations. It was a meeting of democratt as much as this convention. He spoke of the substitute, and said that it was a sufficient guarantee of the faith of the meeting. They would support proper nominations fairly made. What more could be asked? Democrats should have some independentiam of action. Those who had secoded from the meeting had clearly violated the principles of the party. They were in the minority in the meeting and should have accepted the fluntion as well as democrats, but instead of this they withdrew and established a convention of their own. There was no reason to charge these in the meeting with not being democrats, nor questianing their metives by such a test resolution, for they were then in response to a duly authorized call for a democratic mass meeting, and their pressace and participation in the mosting was a guarantee that they were democrate.

Mr. Clark Howell: "If the gentleman will allow I would ask him a question here that he may answer it while he has the floor."

Captain Mercer: "Certainly, proceed."

Mr. Howell: "Was not Dr. Feiton a member of that convention, did he not participate in its proceedings, and yet had he not previously openly disavowed his purpose to support the convention's nominee if he be General Gordon?" [Tremendous applause.]

Captain Mercer: "I don't know."

Mr. Hadson, of Schley: "I will ask the speaker if the sulthor of the substitute proposing to support the nominee if he be the "proper per person," was not asked if he would support the nominee, and replied that he would answer at the polls?"

Captain Mercer: "I believe he did."

Here considerable confusion arose and frequent calls were made for the question. Captain Mercer: "If believe he did."

He said:

I rise to place before this convention for nomination to the gubernatorial chair the name of a distinguished citizen of Georgia, a man who is capable and who is honest. His history is a part of the history of Georgia. I refer to the Hon. A. O. Bacon, of Bibb. [Applause.]

"In behalf of the democracy of the county of Richmond, which I have the honor in part to represent on this floor, I rise for the purpose of seconding the nomination of Hon. A. O. Bacon, or Bibb, in that perfect liberty which we, as citizens of a free republic, feel in choosing those who are to be intrusted with high executive powers and if accordance with the usages and customs of this grand old democratic party which is now, and has been and always will be the safest guardian of their liberty. We, the people assembled to exercise this privilege and choose from among the wisest and best of the sons of this great common whith, one into whose hands, as onleft magistrate, is to be placed the honor, and dignity, and power of the state for the next two years. When we remember that the public office is a public trust, and that we are to give a choice, not for our selves, but the state, the question which confronts us assumes a deeper significance than merely the claim establishes itself as a duty. We cannot make a mistake in this if we tiffak of Georgia first and men afterward. The state demands for this high situation a citizen of high character, unblemished record and that experience in public affairs which will best fit him to discharge all the duties of the state in which all the interest of the people are involved. The party demands one who has always shown loyalty to its precepts and commands, who has rendered long and faithful service in her ranks, and should bestow this honor in recognition of the party demands one who has always shown loyalty to list precepts and commands, who has rendered long and faithful service, and as such we present him to you for your sufferage. We offer as surety for the future, should you see fit to do otherwise, and the banner which he has borne so gallantly through all conflicts should go down in this final sturgel, we who have supported him are here to stand by him and carry him from the battlefield as the Spartan warrior was carried to his house upon his untarnished shiel

I rise, sir, for the purpose of seconding the nominat on of a man whose history has not only been a part of the history of Georgia, but will be a part of it as long as manhood and chivalry lead a majority of her men. [Applause.] I shall not enter uj on any eulogy upon his war record, not that I would consider it out of place, except that it is unnecessary. I am not one among those of our people, who, for the sake of policy, are ready to turn their backs upon the glorious past. [Applause] I would do no act, say no word, that would revive the bitterness of the past, but I would do and say all that I could to make its memories immotal. For us to look upon, or denounce, these who died for us is a concession which the manhood of the south has never made, and which, thank God, the manhood of the north has never required. [Great applause.] I rise for the purpose of seconding the nomination of a man whose record in peace has teen as grand and as glorious as it was in war. Who, without legislative experience or training, took a position of trust in the graudest assembly of men the texists upon the face of this earth, and who remembered not only his state, but the south, as no other man did or could have done. [Applause.] Not only this, Mr. Chairman and gentlemen of the convention, I rise for the purpose of seconding the nomination of a man who has done, in my mind, more than all this to establish his grandness in the recent canvass, which has been so bitter. He has gone from hamlet to hamlet, from county to county, and while his great hearthas swelled to overflowing with love and gratitude for his friends, no word of bitterness has escaped his lips. [Great applause.] I cannot symmer. To call his name would be superfluous, but as a matter of ceremony I will say that I allude to General John B. Gordon. [Prolonged applause.]

Hon. James M. Smith, in response to calls, said:

Mr. President: I cannot jundertake to make a speech. We are here simply to carry out instructions which have been given us by an overwhelming majority of the democratic party of the state. We are here to perform a duty We are not here to indulge in the praise of men. We have been sent here for the purpose of nominating General Gordon for governor of this state. I am not in the habit of attempting oratoricle display. I might stand here and attempt to show the motives, but it would be out of place. When you get down to the will of the people, you are always in the neighborhood of honesty. A majority of the people have instructed a majority of this convention what to do. We have simply come to do this. The democratic party of this state have decided this for themselves and instructed us who to vote for, for governor. I shall not therefore detain you by a speech but asand insuracted us who to vote for, for governor, shall not therefore detain you by a speech but sure you that I have come prepared to give my support to the man whom this convention will

Mr. Clark Howell followed Hon, James M. Smith in a culogistic speech, also seconding General Gordon's nomination. He said:

Mr. Fresident, and gentlemen of the convention—While it may probably suggest itself to you that it is as one who has never that the opportunity of being a soldier, but has always been a civilian, that I have been chosen to second the namination of the distinguished soldier which this convention is about to name as Georgia's next governor. I still take special pride in claiming the privilege of participating in the deliberatous of this convention as a veteran who is not altegether without a record. altogether without a record.

I state this the more readily to establish myself with my many seniors present, who will no doubt be surprised to know that I entered the condict in 1885, and, borne along by the tide of events, continued in it to the end. It is true that I did not do any fighting, for the first two years of my life was occupied in getting away from the enemy, and I may have probably been on an equatorial run now if sherman, in his pursuit, had not struck the sea and had to turn back. [Laughter and applause]

Busse!
But while I returned, unscarred, uninjured, untouched, I had had instilled in me that sentiment of love for the loyal, the true and the brave, which develops into devotion, and finds its truest recompense in a generous reward of chivalric hearts.

recompense in a generous reward of chivalric heroism. [Applause.]

To this sentiment is due, to a great extent the presence of many on this floor today. It was this sentiment, that in the campaign just closed, swept the state from the verdant crests of the Blue Ridge to the foam capped breakers of the ocean, with such a storm of enthusiasm as was never known before, at the mention of John B. Gordon's name. [Applause] known before, at the mention of John B. Gordon's name. [Applause]

It was my pleasure, in a professional capacity, to be thrown often with the people over the state in this campaign. I saw the emotion which actuated the hearts of the sturdy reomanry of county after county into which the distinguished leader went, and as the echoes of his joyous receptions filled the valleys and re-echoed from these old hills outil the whole state resounded with the magic of its music, I then knew that Georgians were not ungrateful.
With every tender memory that his presence awakened, with every slumbering pain that his

With every tender memory that his presence awakened, with every slumbering pain that his soldierly voice aroused, with every sad story that was retold by association, was inspired renewed love and confidence for the man whose name had become symbolical of bravery, and was a household word, not only in Georgia, but throughout the south. No wonder the hearts of the-widows, the orphans and the parents of those who sacrificed their lives at the altar of their duty, melted in his presence, and every joyous acciaim that went from their hearts in the enthusiasm of the occasion, was at the same time an anthem to the dead, which, ascending heavenward, was a tribute to those brave souls whose bones now rest neath the pine and the stubble of the fields of their native state, for which they died. [Applicates]

'neath the pine and the stubble of the fields of their native state, for which they died. [Applause.]

A brave man in war is not often a sluggard in peace. We are assembled to nominate a governor, and in John B. Gordon we find the same qualifications as a statesman as he exhibited valor as a soldier. For seven years in the highest representative body on earth he stood the peer of any member, battling for the rights and protection of his oppressed people with the energy and courage which he exhibited in the field. Not pleading sympathy, but demanding justice—his statesmanship rose pre-emitant imathe grandeur of his services. While others, Laocoon like, stood by and watched the serpents of oppression entwine themselves around the prostrate form of sister states, darting their poisonous fangs at their very vitals, he, by the eloquence of his argument and the force of his statesmanship, did more than any one man to free them from the fatul colls, and today Louislane, Alabama and South Carolina, beautiful again, and grateful in their renewed prosperity, hold out their bands to him, saying: "Would that we too could honor you!" [Applause.]

Such is the man that is to be Georgia's next governor, and in honoring him we honor ourselves and do credit to our state. It gives me pleasure to second the nomination of General John B, Gordon for governor. [Great applause.]

(Applause,) As a democrat, I reci that it is the duty of the minority always to acquiesce in the will of the majority when it is fairly expressed. This, Mr. Chairman, is true Jeffersonian democracy. We have passed through a heated and bitter campaign. For myself, and for those whom I have the honor to represent it is our desire that all resentment and all ill-feeling shall be buried and that peace and harmony shall prevail in our ranks. [Applause.] The integrity of the democratic party is absolutely necessary to its supremacy, and the supremacy of the democratic party in the state of Georgia is absolutely essential to the preservation of our civilization and the preservation of our civilization and the preservation of our civilization and the preservation of our of our party, in accordance with the custom of our party, in accordance with its usages in state and national conventions I desire to move that we make the nomination of General Gordon unanimous by acclamation. GENERAL GORDON SPEAKS.

At that moment General Gordon appeared in the hall, leaning on the arm of Hon. Pat Walsh, of Richmond, and followed by the other contlemen composing the committee. er gentlemen composing the committee. His appearance was the signal for deafening apair to the top of the room, and as they fell they were caught up by others, who sent them again to the very ceiling, while they cheered for Gordon the whole time. It is thought that many hats were lost in this way. Amid the great confusion, General Gordon and his escost made their way to the speaker's stand and General Gordon addressed the convention cort made their way to the speaker's stand, and General Gordon addressed the convention as follows:

Mr. President and Gentlemen of the Convention: The occasion to me is one for very sober thought as well as for great personal gratification. Profoundly grateful to my fellow citizens of Georgia and to you, their chosen representatives, for this nomination, I am nevertheless deeply impressed with the sense of responsibility which it implies. In the present position of parties in Georgia, such a nomination means an election to the high office of chier magistrate of this state. This fact, together with the over-whelming popular support accorded me; the circumstances under which that support has been given, the emphatic popular indorsement of my past public career, and the manifestations of confidence and affection exhibited throughout the canvass, have not only touched my heart to its inmost core, but have placed me under supreme obligation to this confiding people. [Applause] It is no exaggeration to say that even the solemnity of an official oath could not place me under bonds more binding and sacred than have these multiplied evidences of partiality by my countrymen. The presence of this, perhaps the largest body of representative men that has ever assembled in Georgis, and the character of the canvass just closed would seem to render a few practical suggestions not inappropriate.

My first suggestion is that at no period of our history has it been more essential to the welfare of the people to recell and impress the lesson taught by notto of our state, 'Wisdom Justiceand Moderation ticn.' [Applause] These are the gems that enclicle Georgie's crown, and are worthy to rank with the civic virtues of Plato's ideal republic. Indeed we have risen to a still higher conception of government; for Plato assigned a special virtue of special class, while under our form all classes, grades and ranks are lost or merged in the one cast distinction of free and equal citizenship.

with the civic virtues of Plato's ideal republic. Indeed we have risen to a still higher conception of government; for Plato assigned a special virtue to a special class, while under our form all classes, grades and ranks are lost or merged in the one great distinction of free and equal citizenship. Hence, in this free country all these virtues, wisdom, justice and moderation ought to find expressin in every public act of each and every citizen. My second observation is that a free press should be the most po tential voice for good in guiding a free people; but to be thus protential for good it must reflect and be controlled by these cardinal virtues, wisdom, justice and moderation. (Applatuse) The press of our day and country occupies the pulpit of politics; and like the pulpit of. Christianity it should be distinguished for rectitude, elevation and purity. Otherwise it might become quite as potential for evil. But should evil threaten a free people from the misuse of a free press, the most efficient corrective is the wise use of the free ballot. [Applatuse.] But the ballot to be effective for good must also be wielded by freemen, who are controlled by the same great virtues, wisdom; justice and moderation.

In this connection, permit a suggestion as to the duty of the people and the necessity of partles. No greater service to the country could be performed by the press than to urge upon the people the duty of voting in the selection of candidates as well as in the election of officers. In popular averaments danger lurks in popular apathy. Safety lies in popular vigilance. What education is to any trade or profession public discussion and intelligent voting are to the citizen in the discharge of his political discussion and intelligent voting are to the citizen in the discharge of his political the people who himself seeks counselor for the people who himself seeks counselor for the people who himself seeks counselor for the people who himself seeks counsel by communion with the people. [Applanse,] In nominati pense with parties? You might as well attempt to move a railroad train in travel and transportation without its appropriate engine, as to turn and suide the wheels of government in safe and conservative paths without the intervention and ald of party machinery. But the very first essential law of party efficiency is organization. Applause I indeed, it is the essential law of efficiency in every branch of human endeavor. It requires no argument to enforce this truth. It is self-evident. It is apprehended at once by every thoughful mind. It is the lesson of all experience, it is taught by all things around, above and beneath us: by all departments of human life; by all departments of nature throughout God. Almighty's boundless universe.

The last thought in this brief summary to which I invite your attention is, that the disposition to misconceive and misrepresent political oppoments, whether belonging to the same or different parties—to the same or different sections, is a great and growing evil in American politics. It is at war with the virtues which our state's motto proclaims, and with the temperate and candidates. It is a toe to free government. It bilinds the reason, it warps the judgment and mislends the voter, upon whose wise use of the ballot depend at last the justice of our laws and the safety of our liberties. Criticism when just is neserity of our liberties. Criticism when just is nesery, and, indeed, essential; when unjust it is destructive of its legitimate purposes and ought to be discouraged by the press and the people. Parties, press and people when controlled by conservative forces are enlightened, elevated and purified by political agitations; but when these healthful party agitations increase in violence and rise to storms of factions, or threaten the needed concord of the sections or the integrity of parties organized for patriotic purposes, they are productive of vast evil to the country. Let us, therefore, for the sake of our country, cultivate the virtue of mutual forbearance and mutual

PROCEEDING WITH NOMINATIONS.

Hop. W. A. Harris arose and made a nomination for state treasurer. He said his was a pleasant duty. The nomination that he would make would be made with a clear conscience. Hon. Rotert U. Hardeman, as a citizen and as an official, has illustrated every quality of the robleman. He was a pure, true man, and had served the state well. The nomination was received with cheers and was secon ded by Mr. Sweat, of Clinch. There was no opposition and Mr. Hardeman was nominated by acclamation.

An amendment and a substitute were offered, one of which had for its object the limiting of the voting to white democrats. That was objected to by several members, who said they had plenty of good democrats among the colored people of their counties. SPIES POINTED OUT AS THE BOMB-

An Exciting Scene at the Trial of the Anarchists— Witness Identifies Spies and Schnaubel as the Men Who Did the Deadly Work at Hay-market—Incidents of the Trisi, Etc.

CHICAGO, July 28 .- In the anarchist trials today, H. L. Gilmer, a painter, living at No. 50 North Ann street, testified. He arrived at Haymarket at 9:45 o'clock. At the corner of Desplaines and Randolph streets he saw the wagon occupied by the speakers. Fielden was speaking. Witness saw some one leave the wagon and start toward an alley, where four or five persons were conversing. Witness was at the mouth of the alley, and at that moment some one cried: "Here come the police!" Then the man who left the wagon and joined the the man who left the wagon and joined the parties in the alley lit a match and placed it against something held in the hand of one of the lectors. The fuse began to sizzle, and immediately thereafter the bomb was thrown. Witness was shown a picture of Schnaubel and recognized it as that of the man who threw the bomb.

Witness pointed out Defendant Fischer.

This testimony, following that of Thompson yesterday, occasioned a most profound sensation in the court room.

He asked witness when he learned that a premium had been offered for conviction in this case. He replied that he was not aware that any reward had been offered. Witness explained satisfactorily as to his whereabouts. He did not appear at the coroner's inquest, but did report the facts to the police a few days after the tragedy, after having told some of his friends. He went to Haymarket to look for a friend who had gone there. He did not note particularly what Fielden was saying. what Fielden was saying.
In conclusion Mr. Foster asked: "And you

The anarchists, particularly Spies and Fisch-The anarchists, particularly Spies and Fischer, appeared to be completely borne down by the damaging character of the evidence so coolly delivered against them. Gilmer is a long, lank man, with a sanctimonious expression of countenance, and speaks in a drawling tone of voice that almost lulled the spectators to sleep. The appearance of indifference in the audience was suddenly dispelled when the witness identified the photograph of Schnaubel as that of the man who threw the bomb. Interest was depicted on the face of each listener. The judge, jury, counsel, prisoners and auditors leaned over in breathless saticipation and listened to each word that fell from the lips of the heretofore ludicrous witness, and when he said, "Spies is the man who lighted the fuse," es is the man who lighted the f the most intense excitement prevailed in the court room. Every eye was directed at the accused man, whose face paled when he regained his self-possession partially and pulled nervously at his mustache, and leaning over toward Mr. Foster, broke into an incredulous laugh. For one instant deathlike silence reigned, and then the buzz of many hushed whispers filled the air which once more reigned, and then the buzz or many nushed whispers filled the air, which once more merged into perfect silence as the witness pointed to Fischer as one of the men in the alley. It was Fischer's turn to pale and tremble, though the expression on his face was one of blank surprise and astonishment.

Mr. Foster saked witness:

Mr. Foster asked witness: "Mr. Grinnell, you say, is the first man you ever told that you knew the man or could identify him as the man who lighted the fuse and threw the bomb?"

"I think I had some conversation about it with Lieutenant Kipley and others in authority at the central station." "Now, then, did you give Mr. Bonfield a description of the man who threw the bomb?"

"What was it?" "I said he was a tall, heavy set man, with a broad face and light, sandy hair and blue eyes."

"Weil, yeu told him you thought you could identify the man who threw the bomb?"

"I think so."

August Heun, a printer, in the employ of Verb & Klein, corner of Market and Randolph treets, testified: He set np a portion of the circular calling for the Haymarket meeting. Witness obtained the copy of this circular from Mr. Klein, and he got it from Defendant Fischer, who came to the printing office about seven o'clock of the morning of May 4. Fischer wrote a German version of the case, and witness is positive he wrote the following: ing: Workingmen, arm yourselves and appear in full

I asked whose desk it was, Niebe said it was August Spies. On the top of a shelf, back of this desk, I found a package of oily stuff. I asked what it was, and Neebe said he guested it was a preparation to clean type. This package was taken to the Central station and proved to be dynamite. This was the explosive with which Mining Expert Buck experimented on the lake front.

When witness showed the bag to Neebe, Officer McKeogh was in the room, and Officer Haas at the door. Mayor Harrison was in the building at the time or a moment before, but he did not ask Neebe the contents of the package. Mrs. Parsons was also present; so were two young men, who were writing, a gentleman and lady and Detective Boyd.

Officer Hennan Schutter testified. He told a thrilling story of his arrest of Lingg and identified a trunk marked "L. L.," which, with its contents, was found at the house when Lingg was arrested. Among the contents were a large navy revolver, an iron ladle and other iron implements. Witness said that when he opened the trunk he found besides the articles mentioned, a bomb, which he turned over to Captain Schaack. The bomb, which had been unloaded, was brought into court and identified.

THE BOYS IN CAMP.

The LaGrange Light Guards at Warm WARM SPRINGS, Ga., July 28.—[Special.]—
The LaGrange Light Guards arrived here Monday morning at 9 o'clock and will spend one week learning the duties of camp life.
Immediately on arriving the boys went to work with all of the zeal and precision of veteran soldiers. The tents were soon put up and the camp in fine order for their occupancy. Captain J. H. Pitman is in charge of the encampment.

Captain J. H. Pitman is in charge of the encampment.
Guards are mounted and the sentry's calls for the corporal of the guard occasionally breaks the stillness of the midnight air. The boys are in fine spirits and are determined to have an enjoyable time; to learn something of camp life, to deport themselves like gentlemen, as they are, and thereby sustain the past reputation of their gallant company.

Under the command of Captain J. H. Pitman, assisted by Lieutenants P. G. Awtry and Eugene B. Clark, the company will soon become proficient in the discharge of the duties of our citizen soldiery.

I'am the "Mr. Calvin" referred to by your reporter as the only member of the Richmond delegation opposed to making the nomination of General Gordon unanimous. Your reporter was misinformed on that point. My remarks in the caucus were correctly reported. I was advocating the motion made by Colonel Walsh, which looked to the presentation of Major Bacon's name to the convention. I insisted that, as on the one hand, it would be improper for Major Bacon himself to withdraw from the jcoutest; iso, on the other hand, the Bacon delegates would fall of their duty did they not present their candidate's name and have their votes duly recorded for him. This done, the harmonious act of making the nomination of General Gordon unanimous remained to be performed. I fully concur with the delegates from Richmond that such a motion should be made, and that it would come with exceeding good grace from the country of Richmond, which was overwhelmingly for Major Bacon in the exciting canvase just closed. The friends of Major Bacon surrender no principle in bowing to the will of the majority in convention any more than by voting, as they will vote, next October to elect General Gordon to the high office of governor.

Respectfully, Martin V. Calvin.

CASE OF MYSTERIOUS DISAP-PEARANCE REPORTED.

The Southern Cadets Rave a Jolly Time-Watermel Turn Over-Off to Washington-Other News from the Central City, Including Personal Points, News Notes, Etc.

Macon, Ga., July 28,—[Special.]—About one year and a half ago Mr. Sim Johnson, a small farmer from Rutland district, moved to Texas for the purpose of engaging in farming. Mr. Johnson was comparatively a young man, hav-ing a wife and one child, Johnnie.

When they moved to Texas a year and a half ago Johnnie was about six and a half years old. After moving there Mr. Johnson settled down and commenced farming. He worked very hard and with the assistance of his little boy they managed to run a one horse farm. Yesterday a family of his wife living in Rutland district, received a letter from Mrs. Johnson, stating that while Mr. Johnson and the little boy was working in a new-ground last week, Mr. Johnson was suddenly startled by a scream from the little boy, who was about fifty yards away, and leaving his work he ran in the direction of where he heard the screams and where he knew the little boy was at work, but to his disappointment when he reached the place he could neither find his child nor see any trace of him whatever, or hear anything any trace of him whatever, or hear anything of him. He searched diligently for him and two days later had heard nothing of him. It is thought some wild beast must have eaten the child and then fled. It was the only of Captain Duval, who is an honorary member of the company.

MACON, Ga., July 28.—[Special.]—Last night your correspondent was invited to the amory of the Southern Cadets, and on his arrival he found about fifty of the first young men of the city, who compose the Cadets. They had met for the purpose of confirming the election of Lieutenaut Kinnon, whom they had unanimously nominated some weeks ago as first lieutenant, and T. E. Artope second lieutenant. Lieutenant Kinnon has a military record that would do credit to any man in the state, and doubtless will be quite an addition to the Cadets. Mr. Artope too is well known as a military man. After the election the young men were the happy recipients of a couple of boxes of fine cigars, presented by Captain Simms in behalf of Captain Duval, who is an honorary member of the company. The Southern Cadets.

Every young man showed his appreciation of Captain Duval's kind remembrance by a cheerful shout, "Good, good!" After which the cigars were passed around to the company while they remained in line. Then the boys were asked to call at Dr. Paine's drug store, where they would be tendered some of the finest soda water in the city. The invitation was gladly accepted and at the command of Captain Simms the company marched out in order to the above named place, where the soda was dealt out to each and every one, and was highly appreciated by the company of prohibitionists. Then they all dispersed with happy smiles and good hearts.

Watermelons Turned Over. Macon, Ga., July 28.—[Special.]—There is a number of watermelon wagons that arrive in Macon before the sun rises every morning, and many of them dispose of their melons and return before the middle of the day. This morning there was a one-horse wagon loaded with, melons on Mulberry street divisor by a pagery woman and small street, driven by a negro woman and small boy, and to that wagon was hitched a small

They had not had very good success in disposing of their meions, and the jack, aware of this fact, knew it was going to be a warm day, so he decided to dispose of them.

All of a sudden he made a bound, landing the old lady about nineteen feet in the rear of the wagon, and the boy a few steps to the

Seeing his drivers were out, he thought Seeing his drivers were out, he thought that it must be his time to get rid of the melons; so taking a new start he darted down Mulberry street, closely followed by the old lady and boy, but he was too fleet, and in about one minute he had scattered watermelons at least two hundred yards, they, of course, breaking as they touched the ground. He finally stopped about the time the last ones went out. The ald lady and boy got in their wagon and drove back in the direction of where they first started, and all along the little first started, and all along the little jack brayed as though he was proud of the work he had done in the way of disposing of Macon, Gs., July 28.—[Special.]—This morning as Mrs. Machold, who keeps a greery store in the Dempsey building, went to her place of business, she found a large pool of blood just in front of her door, and looked like maybe a quart had been poured out.

It created some little disturbance, and for a while it was thought something serious had happened, and some think it yet. We examined it closely, and think it only where some one probably sat down on a box that was sitting by, and that it was blood from their nose that caused the blood on the sidewalk.

Off to Washington. MACON, Ga., July 28.—[Special.]—This morning Mr. Jesse Jordan left for Washington, where he goes to get a patent on a car lock and seal which he has been working on for the last two years. This is the most complete one we have ever seen and no doubt it will work we'l.

GAINESVILLE, Ga., July 28,—[Special.]—Gainesville owes a debt of gratitude to Messrs, W. B. Kendrick, Frank Spencer, C. S. Hill and Frank Hill, of the Gate City Guard. The Gainesville volunteers have just organized, and these young men eame up on Monday night and assisted in an entertainment for the benefit of our company, and the boys of Gainesville were thoroughly enthused when they saw the beautiful uniforms and splendid bearing of the young soldiers of Atlants.
Lieutenant H. A. Daniel, of Sayannah, now on a visit here, has given his undivided time for two weeks assisting in the organization of our company. We are now certain to succeed. An election for captain has been ordered by Governor McDaulel, to occur next Saturday, after that we will have plain sailing. Gainesville Organizes a Military Company

Thanks to the Good Ladies. MESSES. EDITORS: On yesterday, when I reached the hospital, I found that a goodly supply of vegetables and good things for the suffering inmates had been sent in by the benevolent ladies of the city and my heart throbbed with pleasure and thankfulness; and in addition to this, I learned that a number of good ladies, representatives of the W. C. T. U., of this city, had called in person upon the sick and had cheered them with kind words and beautiful flowers each nation them. the W. C. T. U., of this city, had called in person upon the sick and had cheered them with kind words and beautiful flowers, each patient being furnished with a bouquet and a card containing touching and appropriate scripture verses for their comfort and edification, and this caused my very soul to swell with admiration for the ladies and with gratitude to the Great Giver of all good. And of all his gifts, save that of Christ, the gift woman stands prominent. Is it to be wondered at that woman is regarded as God's appointed agent of morality? and is indeed the moral lever that moves the world, and that some of the most wicked and voluptuous of men—even among the sovereigns and rulers of earth—have uttered the finest eulogies upon her name. The word of God has embalmed her pure soul within its sacred pages. Chivalry throughout the civilized world has shattered lances in her defense, and renowned warriors and statesmen have been glad to lay their proudest honors and laurels at her feet. Great artists have portrayed her beauty in imperishable colors, and then bowed their great souls before the lovely creation of their own genius; and poets with tongues of flame have sung her praises in their inspired songs.

If all these have honored her virtues, then why may we not also speak our praise and our thanks to her when we thus behold her performing missions of love and mercy in our midst.

Georgia's New Governor.

The people of Georgia are neither impatient nor unjust. They will appeal to the record of the next two years from the fretful and ill-tempered judgments of General Gordon that have been heard for the past few days.

THE CONSTITUTION is proud of the part it took in the election of General Gordon, for we accept his nomination as an election. We gladly accept whatever responsibility may come with it. We simply ask that Governor Gordon be judged by the record that he shall make in the two years. Nothing is more unreliable than bad temper. And the bad temper of men who aspired to be bosses and who turned out to be anything else, is apt to be more unreliable than ordipary bad temper. What they say of General Gordon is, therefore, entitled to little weight. But the record itself is patient, definite, sure and reliable. Every act of Governor Gordon's will be recorded. Every sin of omission or commission will be scrupulously or unscrupulously charged to his account. Let him be judged by that record. Let him be held to the strictest accountability for all that he does, but let him not be judged on all that his enemies charge he is going to do. The result of the past campaign shows that they are not reliable as prophets. They asserted solemnly that it was impossible for General Gordon to ever be nominated. Does that set them up as

If the people of Georgia—the great masses that are independent and uncontrollablethat think and act for themselves-ever took a campaign in their own hands and put it through in their own way, the Gordon campaign is the case in point. The people overrode the politicians all along the line, and were irresistible in their enthusiasm. All the known methods of politics were hopeless to stay the tide that lifted General Gordon into the gubernatorial chair, and that marked his campaign as the most remarkable in the history of the state.

General Gordon appreciates the responsibility that this overwhelming demonstration brings with it. THE CONSTITUTION appreciates the responsibility that rests on every agency that has been earnest in the support of General Gordon. We predict-and our prophecy of the late campaign should give ns enough assurance to speak-that Governor Gordon will hold more completely the hearts of his people and enjoy more thoroughly their confidence at the end of two years than General Gordon does now. But let this prediction-with all others of good or evil report-be put aside to wait on the record; for by his record as governor must General Gordon be judged at last.

Lack of Banking Capital in the South. Some very interesting facts have recently been contributed to the discussion in favor of the re-establishment of state banks, which THE CONSTITUTION has been carrying on at odd intervals for a year or more. It must be admitted on all sides that the commerce of Georgia has materially increased since the war. Our railway mileage has more than doubled; our cities and towns have increased in population; our industrial enterprises been enlarged and increased, and a wonderful development has been going on in our material resources.

But, for twenty years, the state and the people have been crippled—paralyzed, we may say—by a lack of capital. This lack is not imaginary. It has been felt in every department of business and by every class. Mr. Calvin, writing to the Augusta Chronicle, touches this question with some figures that are not only interesting, but startling. At present, the state of Georgia, with fifteen national and twenty-two state banks, has a banking capital of less than $7,000,000. In 1860, Augusta, with a population of 13,000 souls, had a banking capital of $9,000,000! more by $2,000,000 than the whole state now Today Augusta has a banking capital of about $1,500,000. This comparison will hold good in every city in the state, and in every state of the south.

Moreover, the banking capital of Augusta and of the state, large as it was, compara tively, was profitably employed in 1860, whereas even the small banking capital of Georgia at this time cannot be employed for the benefit of those who most need it, owing to the fact that the national banking laws limit it to certain uses. In 1860 the banking capital of the state was loaned on real estate, bonds and notes at a reasonable rate of interest on long time.

The demands of the state are such that more than four times the amount of bank capital in use in Georgia in 1860 could be profitably employed now. This is a more serious matter than some of our public mer seem to think. It is, indeed, a vital matter, and it is a little surprising that the senator and representatives from the south have not united in a movement to give the people re-

There is but one remedy that suggests itself, and that is the re-establishment of state banks under such restrictive legislation as will keep them out of the whirlpool of speculation. To this end, it is necessary that the federal tax of ten per cent on circulation shall be repealed. The legislature of Georgia has already adopted a resolution requesting our senators and representatives to se their best efforts to secure the repeal of this tax, and the legislature of South Carolina has adopted a similar resolution. In response to the Georgia resolution Congress man Allen D. Candler has introduced a bill repealing the ten per cent tax on the circulaion of state banks. What support he has had from his colleagues we do not know, but we do know that his bill has not been pressed as persistently as it should have been; for it deals with a matter that is of vital importance to the southern people. Were this bill to become a law, the na tional banks would be benefitted. Undoubtedly such of them as are now reducing their capital in order to employ it profitably, would take advantage of the law to become state banks. They would then have an opportunity to employ their capital for the benefit of themselves as well as for the benefit of the public. We cordially commend these views to the attention of southern congressmen and southern newspapers. If there s anything wrong in them, we should be glad to have it pointed out.

The Gordon Men in Georgia.

The nomination of General Gordon last night closed a campaign that in its inception, progress and results, is without prece dent or parallel in the history of Georgia.

With the close of that campaign will disand the most gallant crowd of men that ever followed any man's political fortunesthe men who supported General Gordon in this race. They fought against the greatest odds. They fought trained and experienced politicians, intrenched in positions that were thought to be impregnable, and behind fortifications that years had been spent in building. They conquered by their very audacity and their devotion. It was essentially a fight of the people against the politicians.

Much has been said of this agency or that that secured General Gordon's nomination. It was due more than to any other cause to the dauntless courage and the unwavering oyalty of his friends in the various counties. Such men, moved by such sentiments, were simply invincible.

We say that the Gordon men will disband with the nomination of General Gordon. We say this because they are not politicians. They are business men who will go back to their business-farmers who will go back to their farm work. They have no political axes to grind, no political ends to serve They have fought with Gordon over and over, and are ready to fight with him again if it becomes necessary. But, until it is necessary, they will go back to their quiet and busy lives. Wherever they go, and whatever they do, THE CONSTITUTION'S heart goes with them, and will abide with

A New Air-Line.

The believers in the feasibility of aerial navigation think they are about to see the realization of their dreams. A Professor Patterson in San Francisco has invented an air ship, with which he expects to travel from the Pacific to the Atlantic in two days, carrying 6,000 pounds of passengers or freight.

The result of the first trip will be anxious ly looked for. Unfortunately the date has not been fixed, but this is doubtless because the ship has not yet been completed. At present there are only two obstacles in the way, but they are mere trifles. The machinery has to be placed in position, but it will first have to be made out and out. This vexatious delay is owing to the fact that the professor has no money and cannot get any. Inder the circumstances persons desiring to cross the continent will save time by not waiting for the air ship.

"Brahmin Caste" Here and There. The St. Louis Globe-Democrat, which has een printing some very interesting letters about labor in the south, persists in misunderstanding the facts with which those letters deal. In a late issue the St. Louis paper has this:

In a certain sense, the plight of the white laborer in the south is even more pitiable than that of the colored laborer. Southern traditions and prejudices are inimical to the man who earns a living by daily physical toil, regardless of the col-or of his skin. The idea of personal dignity or in-dependence as associated with such persons is not accepted in that quarter. In the days of slavery, it was considered a disgrace for a white man to work in a field or at a trade, and that sentiment still prevails in spite of the fact that slavery has been abolished and the whole labor system placed upon a new basis. Those who formerly owned slaves and "looked down" upon those who did not, have yet the same feeling that they then had re-specting the nature of labor in the abstract, and their laws are fashioned in agreement with it.
They seek to make the present industrial situation as nearly like that which existed before the war as they can. The distinction between free and slave labor is recognized only in a formal sense; practi-cally, emancipation has not changed the condition either of the negro laborer or of the poor white man who works for wages as a farmer or mechanic What bosh! In Georgia, we have seen the owners of slaves working side by side with their negroes, and we have seen the sons of slave owners working in the same fields with their fathers' negroes. Nothing was thought of this, for it was not an unusual spectacle. The Globe Democrat gets its views about the south from the cheap novels that were printed in ante-bellum times, purporting to give studies of life in the south. There was never a more industrious or a harder working people than those of the south. We do not hope to convince the Globe-Democrat of that fact, nor do we hope to. The other day some one in the senateprobably Miller, of New York-intimated that Ingalls, of Kansas, had been a peddler in his youth. This statement made Ingalls exceedingly indignant, and, not content with a denial on the floor of the senate, he caused himself to be interviewed by a newspaper reporter. In the course of his interview, Ingalls said he had never been a peddler, but, on the contrary, "belonged to the Brahmin Caste of New England," and, from the date of his birth to the year of his manhood, had never turned his hand to work.

Now, we leave this New England Brahmin to the Globe-Democrat. There is not and never was a "Brahmin caste" in the south. The owners of slaves worked, and the sons of slave owners worked, and there has neve been a day since the revolution when the south could not show a greater number of in-dustrious Americans than New England.

"The Dicky-Bird Society."

A cable special informs us that the peopl of Newcastle-on-Tyne held a big jubilee the other day. It seems that the "Dicky-bird society" recently reached a membership of 100,000, and it was determined that this gratifying evidence of progress should not be allowed to pass without being duly celebrated.

The "Dicky-bird society" was organized in 1877, and its membership includes people in all parts of Europe, South America, Canada, and some parts of the United States. The mission of the society is to foster a kindly feeling towards all living things, and especially small birds.

It is greatly to be regretted that the noble order of "Dicky-birds" is not more widely known. Our people are benevolent and public spirited. They have organized many societies for the promotion of laudable objects, but we fear that their neglect of this new reform association is utterly without an excuse. With the "Dicky-birds" in our midst a long felt want would be supplied. As matters stand our reformers and benevolent citizens have concentrated their attention upon Y. M. C. A. societies, hospitals, asylums, public education, the relief of the poor, etc., but the interests of small birds have been barbarously ignored.

It is not too late to make amends. have in every community able citizens who are fully competent to organize and support "Dicky-bird societies," and a very little en-couragement will doubtless bring them to the front. In fact, we have men who have been "Dicky-birds" all the time, but their lack of organization has made their work ineffective. What is imperatively needed is to rally all these "Dicky-birds" together under a "Grand Cyclops," or "Worthy Chief," or "High Daddy," and begin work in earnest. The new movement has a future before it, and those who feel an interest in it should be up and doing.

The State of Trade.

It is believed that prices of general merchandise tend upward. The speculative markets are not so buoyant, but purchases for regular consumption are made with confidence.

The conditions of the past three weeks continue. Markets are not overstocked. money is easy but gradually going west to meet the demands of the incoming grain crop, railroad building is on the increase and there is an improved feeling in the iron and steel market. Woolen and cotton goods keep up, and the distribution of manufac tured goods for the fall trade has commenced.

While it is too early for general activity, the fall outlook is brightening every day.

Your reporter failed to see Mr. Cogin tonight. Enough is known to say that the resignation has some connection with the strike of the operatives, and that it is significant. Days ago when it was rumored that Mr. Cogin had tendered his resignation the mill operatives unanimously asked the directors to request the superintendent to withdraw his resignation, and stated that he had always been the friend of the employes. Since then it was thought that the resignation had been withdrawn and forgotten, and it was not until late tonight that the rumor that the resignation had been accepted was verified.

A FARMER'S SUICIDE.

Thinking He had Killed His Wite, He Blows His Brains Out,

LAWRENCE, Ks., July 28 .- John Pierson wealthy Swedish farmer, living about ten miles in the country, yesterday shot his wife and then himself. The couple had quarreled countinually himself. The couple had quarreled conntinually for several years, and finally parted. Through the influence of a son, they had agreed to a division of the geods, and yesterday the son and mother drove to the homestead for this purpose. While the woman was helping carry out some furniture the husband shot her in the back of the head, and then placing the muzzle of the revolver in his mouth, blew out his own brains. The woman may recover.

Pencil Paragraphs and Editorial Shortstops Caught on the Run.
A New York man who offered a prize of seventy five dollars for the best short story sent to him by a specified date, received over five thousand manuscripts. The man was thunderstruck. His experience only showed, however, the extent of the existing literary craze. Nearly every man, woman and child is writing for the press, the magazines or the waste basket. The literary market is gluttedglutted a long sight worse than the blackberry market. The retail price of a story is now very near to the original cost. Here is one explanat THE CONSTITUTION has received from an a *join

How many of his sort are at large in the land? In one end of the Atlantic and Western railroad depot stands a big clock, enclosed in a large glas case. The pendulum swings slowly, and the only sound given out is a low tick-tick-tick-tick-tick The influence of that quiet looking old clock is far reaching. All the engineers and conductors and train men set their watches by the big clock. The lives of hundreds of passengers and the safely of great property depends on the old clock at ending strictly to business. The hands must tell the truth. The influence of the clock reaches still further than I have suggested. The people for a hundred and thirty-eight miles eat, sleep and work according to the time furnished by the broad faced clock in the depot. The appearance of the "up passenger," or the "down passenger," or the "goober," or the "way freight," or the "light ning express" settles the question of a local time-keeper's accuracy. "Railroad time" is regarded as the only reliable, and in its presence all other times are forced to the wall. Colones John R. Towers, principal keeper of the penitentiary, aided and abetted in one of the most cruel jokes of the war. The federals were leisurely firing shells into some confederate works, and the bombs were falling and bursting in such uncom fortable nearness that the soldiers had dug hole in the ground and were hiding as best they could. The colonel and some friends got hold of an unexploded shell and stuffed it full of fuse. When the next report was heard, the fuse was touched off, and after a moment the bomb was dropped into the mouth of one of the 'gopher holes where several soldiers were sheltered. minutes. Howl after howl went up as the soldiers expected to be blown into atoms. After a tim the spluttering fuse burned out and things quieted

ECHOES FROM THE PEOPLE. The Cutting Case.

A. H. C., Murphy, N. C.: Please give the origin of the Cutting case at Paso del Norte. Mr. A. K. Cutting is an American, about forty years of age, who has for some time published at Paco del Norte, in Mexico, a newspaper printed in the Spanish language, called El Centinela. In that paper, some time ago, he published certain personal reflections upon a certain Emiglio Medi-na, a Spanish Mexican, who had had the temerity to issue a prospectus for the publication of a rival newspaper in Paso del Norte. On account of this ttack on Medina, Cutting was brought before a Mexican court. What happened and the temper of Mr. Cutting are shown with frontier freedom in the following card, which appeared in both the English and Spanish languages on the same atter-noon, June 20, in the Sunday Herald, a paper pub-lished in El Paso, which is on the United States side of the Rio Grande river, opposite Paso del

Norte:

In a late issue of El Centinela, published in Paso del Norte, Mexico, I made the assertion that Emiglio Medina was a fraud, and that the Spanish newspaper he proposed to issue in Paso del Norte was a scheme to swindle advertisers, etc. This morning said Medina took the matter to a Mexican court, where I was forced to sign a reconciliation. Now, I do hereby refterate my original assertion that said Emiglio Medina is a fraud, and add dead beat to the same; also, that his taking advantage of the Mexican law, end forcing me to a reconciliation was contemptible and cowardly, and in keeping with the doinus reputation of said Emiglio Medina. Should the said Emiglio Medina desire American satisfaction for this reiteration, I die American satisfaction for this reiteration, l will be pleased to grant him all he may desire, al any time, in any manner, A. The Disagreement Over the River and Harbor Bill-The Other Appropriations—A Veto of the Oleo-marks line Bill Looked for—Proceedings of Both Houses of Congress, Etc.

WASHINGTON, July [28 .- [Special.] -The amount of necessary work remaining to be done before congress can adjourn is not large, but some of it is in a shape which may cause delay. Several conference committees were busy today. They compromised the difference of the house on the legislative appropriation bill, but es the river and harbor bill they are still as far spart as ever. The only perceptible effect of the conference on this bill is to stiffen the backbone of each house in the contest for its eriginal position. The Hennepin people have beme obstreperous. They openly boast that they will use any possible means to kill the bill if the Hennepin clause is left out.

Attorney-General Garland returned the oleomargarine bill to the president this afterneen with his opinion on its constitutionality. It is generally understood that the opinion is adverse to the people, and a veto message is expected for tomorrow or the next day. In that event the friends of the bill will try to pass it over the veto, but they cannot do so. When President Cleveland was governor of New York the legislature passed a bill similar to this. He hesitated to sign it, but finally did so on the advice of his attorney general. sequently the court of appeals decided the bill unconstitutional. Mr. Cleveland has been suspicious of oleomargarine bills ever since.

THE RIVERS AND HARBORS. The Senate Conference Committee Reports

Disagreement. WASHINGTON, July 28 .- In the senate, Mr. McMillan, from the conference committee on the river and harbor bill, reported that the committee was unable to agree.

The chair (Mr. Sherman) thereupon laid before the senate a message from the house to the effect that it had instructed its conferees to insist on striking from the bill the items as to Portage lake and Lake Superior ship canal, Lake Michigan and Hennepin canal, Sturgeon Bay and Lake Michigan ship canal, Mississippi river im-provements and Potomac river improvements. Mr. McMillan remarked that there was a parliamentary question as to the right of the house to give these instructions and remove the conference from being a "full and free

MILLEDGEVILLE, July 28.—[Special.]—Yesterday while several girls from this place were visiting at the asylum and playing in the third hall of the main building, the part ccupied by the officers as their residence, Miss Lula Trippe, daughter of Robert Trippe, opened the door of the elevator shaft, and tepping in, accidentally fell a distance of thirty-five feet to the bottom. Assistance was at once summoned to her, but when picked up she was in an unconscious condition, and up to the present, has not rallied at all. Strange to say, no bones were broken, and with the exception of a gash across the fore-read and on the chin, she has no apparent wounds. The physicians are afraid of so internal injuries. The elevator was nsed to carry heavy repairing material to the top of the building, and the door was unlocked on that account. Those who lived in the building were aware of this, and did not open the door, but Miss Trippe being a stranger, did not know, and in playing hide and seek, ran into the opening suddenly.

A SCIENTIFIC FACT.

"Royal" the only Baking Powder Free from Lime and Absolutely Pure.

Lime is the serious defect found in most of the cream of tartar baking powders. As a matter of fact, chemical analysis has found it in all such powders except the "Royal." Its presence is caused by the use of adulterated cream of tartar in the effort to reduce their cost of production.

Lime adds to the weight, while it detracts from the strength of the baking powder. It also renders the food less wholesome, giving rise to dyspepsia and kindred ailments. Baking powders containing lime produce less leavening gas, and therefore in use are more expensive than a first-class, pure

The Royal Baking Powder is made from cream of tartar that is first specially refined and made chemically pure. No tartrate of lime or other impurity can find its way into the "Royal," and to this fact its great superiority in strength, wholesomeness and keeping quality is due.

All this adds greatly to the cost of manufacturing the Royal Baking Powder, but as all its ingredients are selected and prepared with the same precise care and regardless of labor or expense, an article is produced that is free from every extraneous substance-"absolutely pure." Nor does in contain any ingredients except those necessary to make a pure, wholesome and perfect baking powder.

Prof. McMurtrie, late chemist in chief to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, after analyzing the cream of tartar used by the various baking powders of the market, testifies to the absolute purity of that employed in the Royal Baking Powder as follows:

"I have examined the cream of tartar manufactured for and used by the Royal Baking Powder Company in their baking powder, and find it to be perfectly pure and free from lime in any form."

Prof. Love, who made the analyses of baking powders for the N. Y. State Board of Health, as well as for the Government, certifies to the purity and wholesomeness of the Royal.

Dr. E. H. Bartley, chemist of the Brooklyn, N. Y., Department of Health, says: "I have recently analyzed samples of the Royal Baking Powder purchased by myself in the stores of this city, and find it free from lime in any form."

Bread, cake, biscuits, &c., prepared with Royal Baking Powder, will be lighter, sweeter and more wholesome than if made with any other baking power or leavening agent.

Property of the Columbus Manufacturing Company.

Complete and fully equiped cotton factory, together with nearly a mile of the finest water power on the Chattahoochee river, just above the city of the Unattanoocnee river, just anyte tale tale of Columbus.

CTATE OF GEORGIA, MUSCOGEE COUNTY—By D virtue of the power vested in us under the terms and conditions of a certain deed of trust executed to the undersigned J. Rhodes Browne and A. Illges, trustees, by the Columbus manufacturing company, of Muscogee county, state of Georgia, dated March 1, 1884, whereby the said corporation conveyed to us all the property, real and personal, hereinafter described in trust, to secure the payment of its certain issue of bonds and the interest coupons thereof as in said trust deed specified and conveyed to us all the property, real and personni, hereinafter described, in trust, to secure the payment of its certain issue of bonds and the interest coupons thereof as in said trust deed specified and enumerated (all of which appears duly of record in Mortgage Deed Book "A', folios 367 to 373, March 5, 1884, in the clerk's office of superior court Muscogec county, Georgia and in Record Deeds, volume O O, pages Si to 88 inclusive, March 22, 1834, office of the probate court in the county of Lee, state of Alabama, and in conformity with the directions and terms prescribed in the resolutions passed by the holders of said bonds, on April 24, 1836, under the authority conterred by said deed of trust. We will sell in the city Columbus, Muscogec county, Georgis, on the 3d day of August, 1836, between the legal hours of sale, in front of the auction house of F. M. Knowles & Co., on the northwest corner of Broad street and Tenth (formerly Crawford street.) (being the usual place for sheriff's sales in said city of Columbusy at public outcry, to the highest bidder. For cash, the following described property of the Columbus paracels of land situated, lying and being, as follows: Fractional section number thirty-five (35), both in fractional section number eighteen (18), range number thirty (30) in formerly Russell now Lee county, state of Alabama. Also the following lots of lands lying and being in the eighth district of Muscogec county, state of deorgia. known as journal thirty (30) in formerly Russell now Lee county, state of alabama. Also the following lots of lands lying and being in the eighth district of Muscogec county, state of deorgia, known as journal thirty (30) across more or less.

Also, all of the said Coumbus manufacturing company's buildings on said land in Muscogec and the west half or journal thereto, inclusive of the cards, spindles, looms, machinery and fixtures of earth, spindles, looms, machinery and fixtures of earth, spindles, looms, machinery and fixtures of earth, spindles, looms, machinery heavy sheetings and shirtings, three yards to the dound.

The operatives' houses and improvements generally in excellent condition, labor abundant, lands elevated and location of property unsurpassed for health, convenience and economical production—free from the burden of municional taxes paid by all the other Columbus mills, yet within three miles of the city of Columbus and three quarters of a mile of Columbus and Rome railread. The water power is the finest in the south, controlling and embracing the whole bed of the Chattahoochee river for the distance of about one mile along the lands of the company, said lands extending along to benks upon the Georgia and Alabama sides of the river. Only a small portion of the water power is required and utilized in running the present mill and the natural falls in the river render but a simple inexpensive dam of logs and plank necesary. This magnificent water power is easily controlled and has a fall of torty-two and a half (42%) feet within three quarters (30 of a mile. With a comparatively small expenditure upon a new dam, 125,600 (one hundred and twenty-dive thousand) spindles with looms in proportion can be driven by this water power. Capital for the erection of additional mills and utilization of the immense power now wasted, is all that is needed to make this property the site of a prespenous and populous manufacturing village. The personal inspection of capitalists is invited. Fall and satisfactory details will be furnished on application.

NEW YORK STOCKS. Reported at the New York Stock

NEW YORK, July 28.—Trading today was marked by more animation than for some days previous, and larger blocks of stocks changed hands. The Pennsylvania statement for June showed such an nexpectedly invorable state of affairs that the treet readily accepted it as an index to the busine of the other trunk lines, and those stocks soon ne of the other trunk lines, and those stocks soon became again the feature of the market. At the opening first prices showed irregular changes, but were generally within ½ to ½ per cent of last evening's final figures, except Missouri, Kanasa and Texas and Northern Pactific preferred, which were each down ½ per cent. In early trading unfavorable crop news and the passage of the forfeiture bill by the house at Washington created an unsettled and rather heavy market, but the husing of Trunk and rather heavy market, but the buying of Trunk lines soon rallied the list, and prices continued to advance with only slight reactions throughout the day and finally closing strong. NEW YORK, July 28—C. L. Green & Co., in their report on cotton futures today, say: The most trad-ing was at a higher range of prices with fairly steady tone shown. The support came through a fuller movement and firmer reports from Liverpool, and the prompt manner in which quite a liberal offering of August notices was taken up. Toward the close the supply became a little heavy and with the renewal of rumors of political troubles on the on the continent, the market gave way, closing barely steady.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Produce.

Special to The Constitution.

GHICAGO, July 25—There was active bidding in the corn pit at the opening this morning, and prices for September started at 45c, or 360 higher than the close yesterday, and quickly rose to 45%, and then fell off to medium figures. Near the close owing to rumow of rain, the current of reports was continued, hot and dry weather, with the growing crop falling back rapidly. In the afternoon on the "curb" the market was again very strong, with sales reported at anywhere between 45/645/26.

The amount of wheat on the ocean passage disclosed a decrease of 1,800,000 bushels, which caused a firm feeling at the outset. September was quoted as high as 78½. The tone gradually became weaker and all the advance of resterday was lost, the market dropping off 3½6 from outside figures and closing for the day at 76½6 for September. In the afternoon on the "curb" the feeling was just a shade firmer.

Oats ruled weaker, closing 3/261c under yester.

THE DAM NO. 1 CHARGE.

AN INTERESTING STORY TOLD BY AN OLD SCARRED VETERAN.

Ore of the Mest Brilliant and Dashing Charges of the Late War Grapically Described by a Soldier Who F-jught From & to 88-An Army of Dead in a Creek-The Story. A SICK CHILD.—The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Rauschenberg will regret to haw that their infant daughter, Annie Paulie, is dangerously ill at their home.

"See that gentleman passing along there?" said Mr. Charles Wells, the historiau, yesterday afternoon, as he pointed towards a gentle-day afternoon, as he pointed towards a gentle-man passing along Marietta street.

"Yes, I spe him. Why?" answered a Consti-TUTION reporter. "He seems to have been in the war, and has lost a leg. Know him?"

"No, I don't, but he is the exact image of Peter S. Smith, of Newnan, and that crutch reminds me of the hardest fight I was ever in. Smith was in the fight and was the only man hurt, and I guess that, together with the re-semblance between the men, makes me think of Smith."

"Where was the fight?"

"It is known among historians as 'the dam No. 1 charge.' It took place on the liveliest, shortest and most unexpected fights during fithe whole war. The confederates had built a couple of dams across Warwick creek on the peninsula near Yorktown, Va., and thereby backed the waters, in order to prevent General Daniel Sickles's force from crossing. A detachment of a North Carolina regiment was posted at dam No. 1 to throw up rifle pits and hold the grounds, and a splendid battery was placed near dam No. 2 to mow the enemy down should they attempt to cross on either dam. The Sewenth Georgia regiment, under the command of the lamented 'COLONEL WILLIAM T, WILSON, regiment, under the command of the lamented colonel william T, wilson, was ordered to relieve the North Carolina detachment. One thousand picked soldiers from Sickles's corps were ordered to wade across the pond, surprise the few North Carolina pickets, capture the battery, spike the gune, and return with prisoners captured. It was a daring feat of bravery on the federal side, and their soldiers were promised bounties, furloughs and promotion. The federals crossed the pond by holding their iguns and cartridge boxes over their heads to keep them from getting wet, and made a fierce and successful charge on the North Carolina pickets. In a few moments the federals had them completely routed. The Seventh Georgia were double-quicked to the scene of action and ordered to charge and recapture the rifle pits. Colonel Wilson ordered them to "FIX BAYONETS!"

while they were in a fast run through a small skirt of wood. When the olds Seventh got in sight of the enemy they presented a magnificent line on top of the rifle pits reloading their guns. The "rebel yeil" was immediately sounded and a grand charge followed. The federals fired only one round, with little effect, as the writer knows of only one of our men that was wounded. He is still living, and at that time a mere boy, now a prominent lawyer in Newnan, Ga.,—Peter S. Smith. The Seventh Georgia took the rifle pits and picked them off one by one as they tried to retreat through the water. Only a few reached their starting point to give an ac-pits and picked them off one by one as they tried to retreat through the water. Only a few reached their starting point to give an account of the warm reception they had received.

"A short armistice was agreed upon, a detail made and their dead and mortally wounded comrades were carried half way across the dam and delivered to a similar detail on the federal side. General Tige Anderson complimented the Seventh and its gallant commander, and closed his remarks with the expression that "it was a damn No. 1 charge." The Seventh Georgia remained at this point until General Joseph E. Johnston concluded it was not good to be there, as the enemy were largely reinforced and were preparing to bag the last one of us by transporting troops up the James and York rivers, form a junction, and cut us off. The dam No. 1 fight occurred on the very day that the confederate congress passed the conscript act, and it is a remarkable fact that the writer was apprised of its passage by a remark that a yankee picket made on the night of the 17th—one day after its passage. He wanted to know how we liked the conscript law, and what we thought of it. How did he find it out so soon?"

charging him with selling liquor to a drunken man.

The warrant was sworn out by Patrolman Walton and the arrest was made by a bailiff.

The complainant against Mr. Mayson is a man named Dukes, who claims that he purchased liquor at Mr. Mayson's place while in a drunken condition. Dukes's statement is to the effect that he went into Mr. Mayson's place and tried to purchase a bottle of liquor, but was refused. He then got a negro man and went back into the wine room. The negro asked for the liquor, and as it was handed to him Dukes handed the clerk the money. It was a five-dollar bill, and after leaving the place Dukes found, so he says, that the change was wrong. He then he says, that the change was wrong. He then went to police headquarters and reported the case. Mr. Mayson accompanied the bailiff to Justice Landrum's office and made bond for his appearance this afternoon, when he will have a preliminary trial.

A Trunk and Money. Night before last a trunk containing clothing, money and jewelry was stolen from a colored barber at No. 218 Decatur street. Yesterday morning the trunk was found by Mrs. Glaser's little girl on Gullatt street about 8:30 o'clock. The find was reported at police headquarters and Csll Officer Tom McWilliams went after and secured it. The trunk was minus $60 in money, a fine silver watch and a number of bracelets, earrings and other jewelry. The clothing was untouched, however.

Cow Bells Caused It. Will Thompson, a little darky, was arrested on suspicion yesterday morning by Patrolman Parish. A basket the boy carried on his arm, containing six rusty cow bells, caused his arms.

EJECDED FROM A CAR.

Three Colored People Create a Sensation on a Passenger Train, Two negro men and a negro woman were ejected from the ladies' coach, as the Western and Atlantic train was pulling out of the union passenger depot last night, at eleven

The trio of negroes were almost white, and two of them were gold bound eye glasses.

About a quarter of an hour before the train

About a quarter of an hour before the train left the three negroes entered the depot, and asking for the Western and Atlantic train, entered the car which was pointed out to them by Night Watchman Laird. The car was the coach in front of the ladies' coach when the train was made up, but at the time the darkies entered it was standing thirty feet away from the ladies' coach. The three negroes were well dressed and across their arms carried linen dusters, while small handsatchels and bundles were abundant with them. A few minutes befere leaving time Conductor Ferguson signalled the engineer and the front section of the train was pushed back and the cars coupled up. Inomediately after the coupling was made the three darkeys picked up their bundles and, walking across the platform, entered the ladies' cisr. The car was full of ladies and gentlemen, only a few seats being unoccupied, and upon most of these were valiess and bundles. The crowded condition of the car did not daunt the trio. The men took the lead and walked down the saile, closely followed by the woman. Near the centre of the car they found a vacant seat. Opposite the vacant stat a lady occupied one, while a little child sat in front of her. The men looked up and down the car, and then at the two seats, as much as to ask the lady and child to move together. Then the men backed into the occupied seat, one of them saying to the woman:

"Take one of those vacant seats."

The woman looked at the lady and then

"Take one of those vacant seats:"

The woman looked at the lady and then at the child, and finally dropped into the seat by the child. Everybody in the car was looking at the tableau, and as the woman sat down the child abrank away from her. Just this time, Conductor Ferguson cried:

"All aboard for Chattanooga."

And a gentleman hurried into the crowd and up to the lady and child. He was the husband of one and inther of the other. He did not relish the situation, and hurrying out, notified Conductor Ferguson. The conductor entered the car just as the train started to move, and advancing to the woman, said:

the car just as the train started to move, and advancing to the woman, said:

"You will have to go into a front car."

The woman simply pointed across the aisle to the two men. The conductor looked over, and seeing them, said:

"You must take the front car."

"But we have first class tickets," said one.

"Can't help that; will give you your money back if you want it, but you can't ride in back, if you want it, but you can't ride in here."

"But we will."
"I don't wantary trouble, and the best thing you can do is to move into the front car," said

The darkies hesitated a minute and gathering their traps, started forward. The woman, however, kept her seat.

"I guess you had better go, too," said the conductor, picking up her bundles.

"Leave those packages alone," said the woman.

"All right," said the conductor, droppin, the packages, "you can carry them yourself. Now, if you don't go I'll get a policeman and have you put off."
The woman teft, and as the train rolled out, all three threatened to sue the road.

Conductor Ferguson was as discrete and polite in his conduct as any gentleman could have been. The action of Carter's Little Liver Pills is pleasant, mild and natural. They gently stimulate the liver, and regulate the bowels, but do not purge. They are sure to please.

side of the vessel he discovered a white woman in the water clinging to the spiling of the dock. The watchman immediately lowered the ship's boat and rescued the woman from her perilous position, and assisted her to the dock. She was in her night clothing, and gave as a reason for being in that dress that in a fit of somnambulism she had got up out of bed and wandered down to the wharf. Not knowing where she was going she walked overboard. The cold water and the plunge awoke her and she managed to catch hold of one of the spiles projecting out from the wharf. She was very much frightened by her bath and did not give her name. She was taken to her home in the southeastern part of the city. Her disappearance had just been discovered before she returned. She had walked over half a mile while asleep.

Burglars in Roswell.

Rev. Mr. B. F. Breediove. It was a quiet affair, only a few relatives being present. The citizens were taken by surprise at this marriage on account of the disparity of their ages.

LARGE GEDERS.—The trade of Atlanta appears to be as promising as ever. Mr. Henry C. Pendleton, agent for Brown & Earl, of New York, yesterday sold a million segars to Atlanta dealers, 500,000 of the Rabbit's Footbrand to A.G. Howard & Co., and 500,000 of the Thr. e King's brand to Harralson Brothers & Co. These are very large orders for this season, and show that the prospect of dull times has greatly diminished, if it ever existed.

Lively Work.

Postoffice Inspector Booth and his assistants are getting in a good deal of work. Five cases were made Tuesday by Inspector Williamson, in Johnson county.

Amelia E. Frost, postmistress at Battle Ground, was arrested, charged with making false returns to the department for the purpose of securing an increase of compensation. J. H. Wiggins and Nancy Wiggins were arrested, charged with aiding Mrs. Frost in her scheme to defraud the government. All these were released by the commissioner, the reasons for doing so not being stated. The arrests were made by advice of the district attorney. Mary P. Hutchison, former postmistress at Maryville, was charged with disposing of postage stamps and postal cards to pay personal debts. The woman is a cripple, and at the suggestion of the district attorney she was discharged. Henry H. Hutchison, the present postmaster of Maryville, was arrested on a like charge, but his case has not been disposed of. He is a brother to Mary Hutchison.

The Tybee Radroad.

SAVANNAH, (ia., July 28.—[Special.]—The organization of the Tybee railroad was completed today. The following officers were elected: President—D. G. Purse; vice president, S. P. Hamilton; secretary and treasurer, John W. Borough; chief engineer—John Pystell. The contract was awarded to T. B. Innis, of New York. The work will be commenced as soon as the engineer furnishes his estimate of the cost of the building. The road will be turned over to the company April 1st, 1887. "Yes," replied the inspector, "I read it in the Macon paper yesterday. It seems to have been ill advised, as nothing new that is important, is presented, while it serves to recall, and directs attention to the fact that he denied his guilt under oath on the witness stand, making substantially this same

The champions scored their ninth consecutive victory resterday by defeating the bluff city tesm for the fifth game.

Less than one thousand persons were present to see the victory.

The game was a disastrous one for the Atlantas, as two of the best and most reliable players were hurt. Shaffer and Gunson were presented by Purcell, while O'Leary and Broughton acted for Sneed's combination. The game opened with a clean, pretty safe hit to center by Cline, who stole second and third and scored on Manning's fumble of a ball hit by Purcell. In the same inning Purcell, and Lyons scored. The Memphlans got Sneed on first by seven balls and he managed to cross the plate before the third man was retired. In the next inning Shaffer made a clean hit after two men were out and scored, while three Memphlans went out in quick snocession.

The greatest lot of poor ball playing ever seen on the Atlanta diamond was presented in the third. Purcell, the first man up, flew out to center, Lyons went out on a trikes and Lynch hit to center for a single. Hog answashit by the ball and took first, while Lynch was advanced to second. Stricker got first on balls, advancing Lynch to third and Hogan to second. Shafer went to the bat, Hogan played well off second and Broughton threw the ball to Mann dig, who could not send it back to the plate in time to head off Lynch who scored, as the ball was passing back to home Hogan reached third and Stricker second. O'Leary then threw to see and Stricker second, Shafer got first on balls in daying the could not send it may be come from the went to the fifth and Stricker and Shafer second; Shaffer then may be accord; Shaffer then may be accord. His Nomination Satisfactory to the People.

SAVANNAH, Ga., July 28.—[Special.]—The nomination of Mr. DuFont Guerry, of Americus, to be United States atterney for this district, is very acceptable to the Savannah bar, It is not doubted but that he will be confirmed by the senale. The present attoricy, Colonel Darnell, says that he hopes the confirmation will be speedy. He wants to give up the keys to the office as soon as possible, and turn over the records and property in person to his successor, and there is no one, he stated, to whom he would rather hand over the office than to Mr. Guerry, who has been practicing in the United States courts for several years.

"Yes sir; you can say that I will not go out a bulking, but will be ready and willing to give my successor all the assistance and information about the office that I cen," the district attorney remarked. He added: "I know Mr. Guerry is well qualified for the position, and he will make a good efficer. I will be ready at any time to give him the keys and the edubination to the safe."

Milestones on the Road to Health. The recovery of digestion, and the resumption of activity by the liver, bowels and kid-The recovery of digestion, and the resumption of activity by the liver, bowels and kidneys, are milestones which mark our progress on the road to health. They speedily become perceptible when Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is used by the invalid. Nothing so surely and expeditiously consumes the distance to the desired goal. As no bodily function can suffer interruption without impairing the general health of the system, so the system can never acquire perfect vigor, health's synonym, until that function be actively resumed. Take, for instance, digestion, a suspension of which is invariably rectified by the Bitters. If the organs upon which it devolves grow weak, biliousness, constipation, headache, poverty of the blood, and a hundred other symptoms supervene, which indicate unmistakably the baneful general influence of dyspepsia. The disappearance of all these symptoms, through the use of the Bitters, show with what thoroughness it removes their cause.
